

Opportunities in Distressed M&A

In the current economic climate with rising interest rates and a depressed lending market, more companies are falling into financial distress, presenting opportunities for well capitalised buyers. However, M&A transactions involving financially distressed targets and sellers bring with them different requirements than normal M&A transactions. This session will look at the differences between normal and distressed M&A transactions and the different factors which buyers will need to be aware of and ready to address.
