

Identifying Companies Leader in the Transition from Linear to Circular Economy

The concept of the Circular Economy is increasingly attracting the attention of businesses and institutions, as a response to the threats of climate change and environmental degradation, and as a concrete way to decouple economic prosperity from the consumption of finite resources. In this context, asset managers have a fiduciary duty to engage companies in Circular Economy and to integrate the estimated financial consequences of this transformation into investments.

During the workshop we will provide an introduction to Circular Economy thinking and elaborate on the challenges and opportunities for investors.
